

Round-up of forthcoming ESPON research

Laurent Frideres
Head of Unit for Evidence and Outreach

// ESPON Seminar // New narratives for territorial development
// Vienna, Austria // 5-6 December 2018

European sustainable urbanisation through port city regeneration

- insights to policy makers on the potential regional impact of port city regeneration as drivers of European sustainable urbanisation, growth and resilience
- economic, social and environmental impacts of port city regeneration as well as the changed identity in small/medium port cities
- main challenges and risks in small/medium port city regeneration
- better understanding of the frameworks, methods, tools and instruments which can enable, inspire and facilitate the implementation of sustainable port city regeneration

Adapting European cities to population ageing

- analysis of the demographic development patterns, focused on people aged above 65
- insights into the quality of life of older people 'ageing in place' in different types of cities
- how urban living and environments can assist and benefit the social integration and civic participation of older people within urban areas
- how to develop better methods for working with older people as key partners
- improved understanding of how to prevent social isolation in later life

Urban circular collaborative economy initiatives

- impact and potential (environmental, economic, social, governance improvement, etc.) of Urban Circular Collaborative Economy initiatives (UCCE)
- the correlation between multi-level policies (entrepreneurial, educational and training, urban planning, etc.) and the success or failure of UCCE initiatives
- correlation between cultural dimensions (power distance, masculinity-femininity, individualistic-collectivistic, etc.) and the success or failure of Urban Circular Collaborative Economy initiatives

Thank you

Laurent Frideres
Head of Unit for Evidence and Outreach
ESPON EGTC

This presentation will be made available at: www.espon.eu/vienna