Inspire policy making by territorial evidence

Policy Lab 1: Sustainable cities

Aim of the session

To identify key issues from a policy-making perspective concerning climate change and the impact this can/will have on our cities in the future, and how these can be tackled.

Questions to be addressed

- Are there any specific vulnerabilities and adaption strategies related to climate change for cities in specific types of territories?
- Policy-making is lagging behind and does not reflect the acceleration of climate change. What kind of responsibilities does this put on the shoulders of policy-makers?
- How to reach a better linkage among the mitigation and adaptation issues and other strategies/policies at city level?
